BLIND PIGS INCREASE.

But Kauai is not the only island that has blind pigs, as the figues of the department show. The $20,000 increase on the books of the Internal Revenue Department is by no means represented on the books of the Territorial lieense collectors. Oahu has its share of illicit dealers, and it is probable that Mawaii is not far behind

That $20,000 increase means in part increased vigilance on the part of the collector. The year just past was Collector Drake's first full year, and he has made a good showing. But the has made a good showing. But the figures also indicate that more liquor is being drunk in Hawaii than ever be fore, notwithstanding new laws intended to restrict the sale in intoxicauts. This, however, may be partly accounted for by the increase in the population, particularly by the large number of soldiers who are now stationed here. few of whom are greatly averse to tak ing their bitters.

BY MAGIC WAND

Prospero waved his magic wand last night over the audience that assembled peopled with sprites and eives, with the most delicate fancies of the Elizabethan magician whose wand was his pen. The hoarse growling of Caliban mingled with the plaintive love tones of Miranda sighing for her Prince Charming, the noble Ferdinand. The solemn, majestic voice of Prospero dominated the twentieth century audience and the trembling words of old Gon zalo, the faithful, awoke the affection of the people of today as it deserved that of his ancient friend of story Jolly, drunken old Stephano aroused the same merriment last night that his im personation undoubtedly did some odd centuries ago when he made his appearance in buskin and unreal make up or the open-air stage of the outskirts of London with one Will Shakespeare as stage manager,

The selection by Marshall Darrach of The Tempest for his farewell recital last night was a happy one, for this most delightful of Shakespeare's comedies gives the impersonator wide range for the display of his talents while the great dissimilarity of the characters of the drama tax to the limit the flexibility of his remarkably per sunsive voice. Mr. Darrach's interpellations and in terpretations as he proceeded with the rendition of The Tempest were not the least interesting part of the pro-gram. His naturalness and avoidance of stiffness and of posing combine with charm of his rich voice to delight his hearers.

The character of Caliban, said Mr. Darrach in one of his explanations of the play, is one of the most significant of all of Shakespeare's characters. It of all of Shakespeare's characters. It is the only one that the dramatist absolutely originated. All the rest—Portia, Shylock, Hamlet, Macbeth and the host of others—are portraits either from the life of Shakespeare's time or from history. Caliban has no prototype; he was born in Shakespeare's imagination. One other observation of particular interest, though one not original with Mr. Darrach, the impersonator made in the course of the program. Referring to Prespero's farewell incantation to the spirits and his abjuration of his powers over them, Mr. Darrach stated that this has a significant that this has a significance greater than appears on the surface. The Tempest was one of the last, if not the last, of Shakespeare's plays, and this farewell of Prospero to his familiars is believed by many of the Shakespearean critics to be also the farewell of the Bard of Avon to his art.

The best received impersonation of the program, one that won the hearty applause of the audience, was Mr. Darrach's vocal portrait of Caliban the monster of the isle, whose strange con-tortions, wild strivings against the bondage in which he was held by Prospero, vain efforts to understand the cursed fate that forced him to obey where he would rather have strangled, beastlike growlings and mutterings it took an artist to portray.

To change suddenly from the dulcet tones of Miranda to the hoarse grumblings of Caliban must have been a severe tax on the vocal chords of the inversementar, yet he shifted from one impersonator, yet he shifted from one to the other without apparent effort, W. K. Purdy, E. M. Miller, Miss L. and then to the rich, low voice of Yates, Master H. Leslie, W. W. Thayer, Prospero, the light gibbering of Trin-Miss A. E. Biart, Mrs. K. Two of these, "A Shell and a Song," and "I Was Asleep," were delicate love songs, while the third, "Two Ways of Looking at Things," was humorous. Mr. Darrach said it was and he ought to know, for he wrote it. Really, however, it was good, so his word may be taken for it. Mr. Darrach leaves today on the Jenne, Miss L. T. Lejeune, Miss E. D. The first session of the new Commis sion of Public Instruction, which came in the makai pavilion of the Young into being as the result of an act pass-Hotel to hear the farewell recital of ed by the last Legislature, was held in Marshall Darrach, and, lo, the air was the room of the Board of Education yesterday morning. The full membership of the commission was an attendance at the meeting-A. F. Judd and Mrs. May Wilcox, of Oahu; John T. Moir and Miss Ella H. Paris, of Hawaii; W. H. Rice, of Kauai, and W. O. Aiken, of Maui.

There was a disposition upon the part of the Commissioners to question the wisdom of the Legislature in circumscribing the authority of the Commission so, as Commissione Rice, of Kauai, expressed it, the members "could only

Superintendent Babbitt, who is vest-ed with the title of executive officer of the Commission, stated that, in his opinion, the Legislature had made a serious mistake in abolishing the office of Normal Inspector, and he presented a plan by which he thought that the handicaps could be overcome. His idea is to have a supervising principal named, who would have authority over all the school principals, and make regular visits to all districts of the Territory.

The opinion expressed by the Com missioners was that too much author-ity has been delegated into the hands of the County Supervisors in the mat-ter of school regulation and supervision. Superintendent Babbitt stated that aside from the supervision over teachers the only authority possessed by the Commission was distinctly of an advisore nature.

A resolution was prepared and passed providing that all teachers shall draw up a list of their requirements in materials and supplies, and it was also agreed that principals shall be provided with blank forms on which to make requisitions to the department,

The system for the substitution of a supervising principal in place of the Normal Inspectors will be arranged at a January meeting.

Two important suits have been ter minated by the successful conclusion of compromise agreements which were officially placed on file yesterday. Juoge Robinson granted the petition of the Bishop Trust Company as administrator of the estate of Chun Afong to com-promise a suit against F. B. McStocker, The action was based on the promissory notes for $2000, bearing the date of December 28, 1898 payable in 1901, 1902, and 1903, the notes all bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. In the petition for a compromise that was granted yesterday it is stated that in July, 1907, McStocker insti-tuted a suit against the administrator of the estate of Chun Afong on the ground that in September, 1889, Chun Afong was in his debt to the extent of $32,500, a fee in connection with work incident to the sale of Peepeckeo plantation. The allegation was made that in 1890 Chun Afong left the Territory and that he declined to pay any portion of the claim against him, the ing to $76,481.52. In the petition which was filed yes-terday it is stated that owing to the death of Chun Afong it would be ex-tremely difficult to make a successful principal and interest sued for amount-

An oner was made by accrocker to discontinue his suit if the administra-tor of the Chun Afong estate would do likewise with the action pending against him and this was agreed to by all the heirs of the Chun Afong estate with the execution of Abraham Afong with the exception of Abraham Afong The latter was cited to show cause why the petition should not be granted, but he did not appear.

The trustees of Oahu College have decided that, in order to complete the eataloguing of books in the Cooke Library, it will be necessary to have a second librarian. The librarian has been sent for and will probably arrive before the opening of the next school

The Cooke Library now contains 13,-000 bound columes and about 2000 unbound pamphlets and periodicals. This collection includes both the books of the old library and also the volumes purchased with the generous donation furnished by Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cooke. The cataloguing of these volumes is being done in a very thorough and complete manner, under one system, the Library of Congress cards being used as far as is practicable.

As both the librarian and the trustees are anxious to have the cataloguing completed as soon as possible, it was decided that a second librarian should be engaged. The second librarian will devote her time, almost exclusively, to cataloguing. With the arrival of the new librarian, the work will be rushed alone as rapidly as is consistent with along as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness. It is estimated that shout two years will be required to complete the work.

ficer Jones from Koolau. They recaptured two or three of the prisoners and retreated toward the office door. The machine by this time was occupied by rioters; who declared that if one man were arrested, everybody should be ar-rested and carried to Honolulu.

Jarrett and his men locked the door of the office and the Sheriff gave warning that any man who attempted to open the door or force an entrance would be shot. He produced his revolver to show that he was in earnest. In the office was a telephone, and soon Jarrett had Deputy Sheriff Rose on the wire, explaining to him his pre-dicament and asking for a relief force. The deputy immediately dispatched three mounted officers to Wamanalo. They rode hard and covered the dis-tance in remarkable time. At three o'clock a force of ten officers and specials, fully armed, went over the Pali route in an auto, and at 3:30 Deputy High Sheriff Doyle, a photographer, and two newspaper men followed in another machine.

When the second auto reached the office, all the plantation laborers were massed in front of the building, some sitting, others standing. On the veranda the sharp-pointed bayonets of the Springfields showed plainly where the foot police were on guard. The three mounted men were nearby. The Sheriff was on the veranda. Devic impediate. was on the veranda. Doyle immediately stepped before the assemblage and told the men that the wisest course would be to disperse and not interfere with the officers on duty, or try to prevent the Sheriff from making the arrests on the authority of the warrant which he had in his pocket.

Some started to leave, others passed comments, receiving sharp rebukes from one or two men in the crowd. Then something happened. The Sheriff identified several in the crowd as men who had obstructed his way, and officers quickly placed them under arrest. They were rushed into the office and interrogated. Some were "cocky." One brazenly said that he had only stopped the auto in order to find out whether the men were guilty or not, before allowing the officer to take them to Honolulu. Another admitted that he had said he did not care whether he died or not. One, a barber, said he was not with the crowd, but a specvalley yesterday morning. Despondency over the death of young Bellina, who hanged himself a short time ago, is said to have prompted her desperate act. After streamous work the doctors and he ordered them all taken to Hono-

In one big auto six prisoners were placed under the guard of a newspa-perman; the second auto held another sextet, also under guard of a newspa-perman, and the third and last auto contained the assaulting trio and the complaining witness, under guard of Deputy High Sheriff Doyle.

It was necessary for the police, both foot and mounted, to force the crowd back at the point of the bayonet, as the autos prepared to leave the prem-ises. As the first auto passed by the crowd, one of the prisoners shouted "Banzai, Banzai," and was cheered in return. The mounted officers followed the auto procession to the railrad track, returning immediately to the office. Sheriff Jarrett and his officers will remain at Waimanalo until sometime to-

This was the signal for action on the part of the crowd. The men surged for investigation.

Following are the names of the ar-rested men: Yamamoto, Higashi, Kabayashi, Kimura, Nakagawa, Sukamoto, Ozaki, Inura, Ota, Nakai, Fukui, Ta-mura, Kamori, Doi, Asami, Hirosui.
